Great saw for the money.

For softer woods this is a good light duty saw. As with any band saw, proper adjustments of the top and bottom guide blocks and thrust bearing is critical. Once set-up and with a slow steady pace had no issues making cuts.

Performance and Price just right!

I needed to cut wine bottle corks in half. This ran like a champ. The whole thing is identical to the Ryobi bandsaw at Home Depot.

For the money it's a great little machine.

I bought this to cut knife handle blanks from seasoned and dry Mesquite Burl. Though it's a very hard wood to work, this little guy had no problem cutting through 3.5 inches to make the handle wood and then make a 1.5 inch radius in the same material. I am very impressed for the money I spent.

So far not a bad saw. Meets my expectations.

For the money it's a nice light use saw.

Great little saw

Great little saw---just had it a week---first project is a AC-130 gun ship for my grandson---easy set up using direction provided-----just a little tweaking to set the blade tracking---easy cutting-----as with any tool, using it for the designed purpose is most important-----so far so good. Just wish Harbor Freight had a couple more tooth pattern blades for this saw----right now they only have 1/4" 14 tooth blade in 62" length.
